#144

Gratitude

Many people are unhappy not because they have nothing…

but because they fail to value what they already have.

Friends,

if you learn to respect and appreciate your parents, family, friendships, health, time, and the opportunities you already have… life will start giving you even more.

Because…

“Gratitude” is a key that can open even closed doors.

There was once a farmer with a very small field, yet every day he thanked God for what he had.

People used to ask him, “What do you even have to be thankful for?”

The farmer smiled and replied, “I honor what I have… and that is why one day I will receive what I don’t have.”

And truly… within a few years, his small field became a large farm.

Because contentment does not stop a person…

it gives a person strength.

Today, take one minute and think —

Do you truly value the people, opportunities, and blessings that are already present in your life?

Because…

“If you honor what you have, what you don’t have will also come to you one day.”